

Junior Project/Product Manager

Simpleway is a world leading vendor of the Passenger Information System, which are helping 10% of all air passengers to find their flight on airports as well as millions of commuters to get on time to their train. We are a Czech family-like company owned by 3 friends from the college who rocked the world with an epic product without a competition. We maintain very flat structure where everybody's voice can be heard.

General Description

Simpleway continuously improves its core product of Passenger Information System and its technology. For this activity we are searching for a passionate person who lives for trains, aircrafts, urban transportation and is able to imagine the challenges of information distribution around the city and airports to inform passengers about the upcoming departures and disruptions. We also believe that designing the product from a comfortable seat in the office is not a good way. Therefore, you should be able to manage small projects and help with the project management work before you start your own in the future.

You will be responsible for:

- Design and development of new or revised features for the Passenger information system (Voice, display, social network information distribution by metro/rail/airport operators)
- Project and product features management through overall feature lifecycle – wildest idea, feature design and development up to solution delivery to an end customer
- Creating a structured documentation through overall product lifecycle
- Cooperation on the Use case definition for our customers - Airports or transportation companies all around the world
- Sketching and mocking up your ideas
- Workshopping and validating ideas with a responsible team
- Working closely with engineers and the QA team on wireframes and ensuring quality during a delivery process
- Managing small pieces of deliverables or change requests
- Managing internal projects or their parts

You should consider applying if you are:

- At least a college student in the 4th year or higher
- Somewhat experienced in Product management or Project Management
- Willing to work for our Headquarters in Prague, Czech Republic
- Able to speak and write in English on an advanced level

- Business oriented person with some information technology background
- Communicative person and not afraid to work with a team
- Proactive to bring new ideas and improvements into the team
- Motivated to work fast and effectively to bring the solution to a customer
- Happy to be responsible for a solution
- Creative to bring nice and up-to-date ideas
- Passionate to see the result of your work on airports and metros around the world

We offer
